REFLECTION

“St. John of the Cross says: ‘The lover cannot be satisfied if he feels not that he loves as much as he is loved.’ One who truly loves cannot endure being outdone in love, and the more he feels himself loved, the more he desires to love in return. But how can a creature, so weak and limited, equal God in love, that is, love Him as much as it is loved by Him? ... The flame of charity was enkindled in our soul by the divine Paraclete on the day of our Baptism; it has grown since then, in proportion to our correspondence with grace.
Grant, O Lord, that I may have perfect and lasting intimacy with You, that I may ever love You more and more.”
Divine Intimacy, pages 1083-1084.
